SECURITY AT THE SYNAGOGUE

FULL-TIME ARMED GUARD, CAMERA MONITORING,
AND SINGLE-DOOR ACCESS. WE'RE WORKING HARD TO PROTECT AND DEFEND.

ON THE COVER

Pesach Ir-Sahi, the creator of this image, lived until 1968. But he published this poster in 1935. It's the classic image of a pre-state kibbutz, defended by nothing more than a three-legged watch tower (top) and a stand of cypress trees. We pray for the restoration of this golden ideal: "After 2,000 years [the homeland is ours once again.]" May the memory of the righteous, murdered in October 2023, be for a blessing, now and for always.

NOVEMBER HIGHLIGHTS AT THE SYNAGOGUE

2 CHRISTIAN NATIONALISM

On November 2, two distinguished thought leaders, Rachel Laser and Robert P. Jones, will come together at the Synagogue to discuss Jones' new book, The Hidden Roots of White Supremacy, and the forms of Christian Nationalism our country has seen both past and present. Please see page 8 for details.

3 BIBI-DIBI

Crawling? Barely walking? Not yet talking? There's a place for you in our circle at Bibi-Dibi. It's a monthly Shabbat gathering for babies and their families. We sing songs, play games, and share a beautiful Shabbat dinner. We see this as an excellent way to build your own family traditions. While no reservation is necessary for the celebration, we ask that you make reservations by calling or visiting our website if you plan to join us for the meal. The celebration begins at 5:30 p.m. and dinner starts at 6:00 p.m.

5 JEWISH FAMILY COOKING CLUB

Food is an essentially delicious way to connect to our traditions and one another. Join the club and embark on a flavorful, family adventure in our new four-part series; the Jewish Family Cooking Club. We'll meet on four Sundays throughout the year just after ShulSchool for lunch, schmoozing, and a hands-on kitchen session. Throughout the experience we'll learn about the history and meaning of a dish and get to work making it ourselves. Each family will leave with their dish in hand along with a recipe and instructions to recreate the experience at home. The cost is $36.00 per family and includes lunch and materials. Visit www.tulsagogue.com to hold your spot at noon.

5 SEVENTEENTH STREET DELI

In the kitchen of the Seventeenth Street Deli we do things right. Slow cures, too much pepper, and lots of love. Our pop-up restaurant is back with both dine-in and take-out dinner service available. Please pre-register for your meals at tulsadeli.org and choose between pastrami, corned beef, or deli egg salad. You can call us at (918) 583-7121. A complete meal is $18. Register soon before all the spots are gone. Starting time for take-out and sit-down is 5:30 p.m.

Please Bake Challah for Bikur Cholim.

6, 13, 20 SEPARATION OF CHURCH + STATE

Learning Over Lunch returns with a new topic! Join Morah Sara Levitt for a three-part series on the Jewish perspective on the Separation of Church and State. This round, we'll invite local experts in this field to deepen our own understanding of the issues at hand. Our series will follow the highly anticipated event on Christian Nationalism in America on November 2. Participants should bring their own dairy vegetarian lunch. To learn more and RSVP please visit the Synagogue website at www.tulsagogue.com or call (918) 583-7121. Each session will run from noon to 1:30 p.m.

9 BLATT+BLUE: LITTLE WHITE LIE

Lacey Schwartz grew up Jewish in Woodstock, N.Y., yet something seemed off. Her peers would ask if she was adopted. At Ms. Schwartz's bat mitzvah, a member of her synagogue assumed she was an Ethiopian Jew. Her family attributed her darker skin to a Sicilian great-grandfather. Only gradually did Ms. Schwartz, now 37, begin to suspect what might seem obvious to an outsider: that her biological father was black. The conversation will begin at 7:00 p.m. on Thursday, November 9. Look for Zoom access at 918 583 7121.

10 SHABBAT FOR EVERYONE

Just like the name suggests, it's an accessible, kid-friendly, musical Shabbat experience for everyone! Newcomers and experienced community members come together to sing, dance, and welcome Shabbat alongside one another. No reservation is necessary for the celebration, which begins at 7:00 p.m., but if you would like to join us for dinner, please register at www.tulsagogue.com. The service will be broadcast live on Zoom at 918 583 7121.

12 NAVIGATING THE JEWISH INTERNET

In the age of Wikipedia and Rabbi Google, the way in which we learn has drastically changed. Facing the modern fire hose of information, how are we to know how to separate the truth from fiction, crazy from critical? Join us to look at online Jewish resources that can help you navigate your own learning and exploration. Feel free to bring along your own internet browsing device for this inter-connected workshop. Doing Jewish sessions are monthly workshops on practical Jewish living. Think of these as sessions to deepen familiarity across the depth and breadth of Jewish life. For more information, contact Rabbi Kaiman. Starting time is 10:00 a.m.

12 SISTERHOOD BOOK CLUB

Sisterhood members will be discussing Code Name Sapphire, by Pam Jenoff. Sandi Tilkin will lead the review of the book. Sisterhood is looking forward to a great discussion. Starting time is 11:00 a.m. at the Synagogue.

13, 20, 27 INTRO

Looking into Judaism? Born Jewish and want to know more? Sharing your life with a Jew and want to crack the code? INTRO explores Jewish culture, history, and wisdom in a setting where questions are more important than answers. Classes are joined with beautiful Shabbat celebrations, supportive discussion groups, and many opportunities for interactive, experiential learning. This is an 18-session Introduction to Judaism Course, which is affiliated with the Miller Intro Program at the American Jewish University. To promote accessibility, this round of INTRO will be taught on Zoom at 918 583 7121. For more information or to register, visit tulsagogue.com/intro. Starting time is 7:30 p.m.

16 LIFELONG LEARNER'S FIELD TRIP TO OKC

Gathering in person for ongoing learning and exploration, ageless seniors from every corner of the community are invited to join Rabbi Kaiman on a special tour-guided field trip to the First Americans Museum in Oklahoma City. Transportation from the Synagogue to the First Americans Museum will be provided, leaving the Synagogue at 9:30 a.m. Zarrow Pointe residents will be transported by a Zarrow Pointe provided shuttle, leaving Zarrow campus at 9:30 a.m. It's our pleasure to provide this service in cooperation with our fellow Jewish institution. Lunch will be provided at the Museum. Please reserve your spot by calling the Synagogue at (918) 583-7121 or visiting our website.

16 SIX YEARS OF MAGIC CITY

Our partners at Magic City Books are celebrating their sixth anniversary with special guest Michael Cunningham, the Pulitzer Prize-winning novelist of The Hours, for an event to launch his first novel in more than a decade, Day.

Magic City Books co-founder Cindy Hulsey believed that books could change lives because a book changed her life. The Hours by Michael Cunningham was the book that changed Cindy's life and inspired her to switch careers and become a librarian. We are honored that Michael Cunningham will join us at the Synagogue for an event to celebrate his new novel and be joined in conversation by Cindy's friend and colleague from the Tulsa City-County Library, Rebecca Howard.

This is a ticketed event, each ticket comes with one hardcover copy of Day ($28 value) by Michael Cunningham and one seat at the event on Thursday, November 16. Tickets can be purchased through www.magiccitybooks.com.

18 BAR MITZVAH OF HENRY WATT

Henry Spencer Ruben Watt, son of Kym and Ken Watt, will become a bar mitzvah on Saturday, November 18, at Congregation B'nai Emunah. Congratulations to Henry's entire family. Starting time for the celebration is 4:15 p.m. Please see page 8 for details.

19 FAMILY DAY OF SERVICE

ShulSchool and students and their families are invited to this semester's Family Day of Service. On Sunday, November 19, families will join their children for a day of intergenerational learning, celebration, and action. We'll learn about the Jewish obligation of caring for others. The morning will include a T'fillah experience, project-based learning, snacks, and community! Our work begins at 9:00 a.m. Please be in touch with Morah Sara for more information at slevitt@bniaemunah.com.

MAZAL TOVS

To Natalie Charney and Avi Oved on their recent wedding in Tulsa. Mazal tov to the Charney and Oved families on a joyous celebration.

To Yolanda and Harold (z'l) Charney on their induction into the Tulsa Hall of Fame at the Tulsa Historical Society. They were celebrated for their careers of activism and public service in the Tulsa area.

To Shaina Cash and Josh Rouben on their recent engagement. Shaina is the daughter of Sharon and Dr. Jaime Cash. Josh is the son of Hillary and Dr. Leor Rouben.

To Cassidy Petrazzi on her recent article in Art Focus Magazine covering a new exhibit at 108|Contemporary, marking the tenth anniversary of the gallery.

To Lynn and Stacy Schusterman on their inclusion in the Jerusalem Post's list of Fifty Notable Jewish Community Leaders.

FROM RABBI DANIEL KAIMAN

■ INVOCATION

On Sunday afternoon, October 15, Rabbi Kaiman delivered an invocation at the Simchat Torah Massacre memorial event in Liberator's Park. Below is the text of that moving piece.

Yesterday morning, Jews worldwide began reading the Book of Genesis. After the high holidays. After the festivities. This is how we start our year. At the very beginning of our story.

We finish. We celebrate. And then we begin again, living out the cycle that promises continuity and connection across generations. This afternoon we find ourselves caught in a swirling cycle. Spinning, and twirling. But knowing we must begin again.

A story is told about the creation of humankind.

And God said, "Let us make humankind in our image, after our likeness."

And God created humankind in the divine image, creating it in the image of God— creating them male and female.

All of us are made in the image of God.

What could this mean? Often, we say that to harm any person is to harm the godliness inherent within them. Therefore, in doing harm to another, we are harming God.

It's a nice idea for most moments. But at times like this, when grandmothers are held hostage, when children's lives are stolen, when safety and innocence are shattered, we cannot be blind to the actions of the human beings who carry out these horrors. Are we to say they are made in the image of God? Are we to say that those who inflict harm on another represent the divine?

I cannot.

So, what does Torah mean when it states that God created humankind in the image of God?

It means all of us have the potential for godliness. But it is a quality that must be developed by each person. Sometimes context, trauma, and history cloud our judgment. Sometimes systems, sickness, and cynicism get in the way of that potential. And that leads us to moments like we mourn today.

But Torah reminds us that everyone has the potential for godliness. A holy task is to seek and see that reality in another. Everyone has the potential for healing and hope.

For me, this moment is not about policy or strategy. For me, what we come to do this afternoon is remind ourselves and each other of our shared potential, even when we hurt. Even when we are scared, we can never lose sight of our shared humanity. We can never stop striving for a better world.

May this gathering be one of strength and peace. May safety and security be realized for all. And may we always be reminded that we each have the potential to realize godliness.

BLATT + BLUE

■ LITTLE WHITE LIE ON NOVEMBER 9

"Little White Lie would be provocative simply for what it says about race and identity. The director Lacey Schwartz grew up Jewish in Woodstock, N.Y., yet something seemed off. Her peers would ask if she was adopted. At Ms. Schwartz's bat mitzvah, a member of her synagogue assumed she was an Ethiopian Jew. Her family attributed her darker skin to a Sicilian great-grandfather. Only gradually did Ms. Schwartz, now 37, begin to suspect what might seem obvious to an outsider: that her biological father was black." [New York Times]

Little White Lie will be the featured film for November on Thursday, November 9, at 7:00 p.m. It is easily available on Prime Video for a token fee. If you have difficulty locating it online, please call Program Director Richie Bolusky at (918) 583-7121.

For over three years, Alice Blue and David Blatt have tackled the world of Jewish film and television, growing a large audience for sometimes overlooked and underappreciated Jewish filmmakers. We'd love to have you as part of our group, even if you have not had time to screen the film in advance. All of our sessions are on Zoom so that we can accommodate participants in other cities. The call-in number is consistent for all Synagogue events: 918 583 7121.

■ SIGNS AND SYMBOLS

For almost twenty centuries, the Jews of Rome have made their peace with the city by carefully avoiding one of its signature monuments. The Arch of Titus sits near the Coliseum as a reminder of the sack of Jerusalem in 70 C.E. It bears the famous image of Roman soldiers looting the treasures of the Second Temple. The insult is amplified by a scrum of Jewish slaves, the human prize of Roman aggression in the Land of Israel. When the arch was erected, those slaves had already been sold in the marketplace, then tormented by the imagery of their own enslavement.

But for a brief moment in October, the archway was transformed. Against the background of its own history of oppression, the government of Rome illuminated the Arch of Titus with the colors and iconography of the State of Israel. Along with many of you, I found the sight astonishing. For decades many liberal Europeans have failed the test of empathy, placing Jewish suffering on the lowest tier of concern. But in October, there was a moment of moral clarity, not only in Italy, but Germany, France and elsewhere. It took the slaughter of innocents to prompt it, but it was a moment of clarity all the same. Our own president led the effort of reassurance. No speeches will ever equal the force or sincerity of his remarks

None of us can know where the tragedy and horror of the Simchat Torah Massacre will finally land. I'm writing in the middle days of October. Over 350,000 Israeli soldiers have been mobilized and we are in an agony of waiting, with opinion already turning against the Israeli government. Moral clarity tends to disappear as soon as it coalesces. Meanwhile, Israel is hoping to accomplish what may be impossible: dismantle a cursed, terrorist regime and minimize the loss of innocent civilian life. Many Israelis have bothered to say that even in the midst of terrifying loss, they are aware of the suffering of Palestinian non-combatants.

But I want us also to recall that in the midst of crisis, the world somehow attained a moment of moral balance. Even as it rightly worried about humanitarian concerns, it supported Israel's right to self-defense and to change the nature of its struggle with terrorism. In small ways and large, October will be a turning point, and I pray that days ahead will turn mourning into relief, and grief into a path forward in history.

■ WHO SHALL LIVE...

... and who shall come down with RSV? Aaaaaargh!

As some of you may know, I spent the end of September and most of October at home in bed with RSV. It's that newly prominent viral illness that is now part of the Big Three of autumn: COVID, Flu, and Respiratory Syncytial Virus Infection. I had all the classic symptoms: cough, fever, wheezing, and decreased appetite. But it was the fatigue that got me. I haven't been myself in well over a month.

So many of you sent your best wishes, but I'm really writing to suggest that you make a conscious decision for or against vaccination. Because I've been talking about RSV obsessively since Yom Kippur, I know that some physicians are in favor of RSV shots and others are opposed. The details are important, but I never like to go beyond the borders of my expertise.

What I can suggest is that you speak to your own physician and get a sense of where s/he stands on this issue. Either way, I'll be rooting for you and your good health this season.

BIRTHS

■ HENRY WATT ON NOVEMBER 18

Henry Spencer Ruben Watt, son of Kym and Ken Watt, will become a bar mitzvah on Saturday, November 18, at Congregation B'nai Emonah.

Henry is an eighth-grade student at Monte Cassino, where he is an excellent student. He is also a proud member of Mensa. He enjoys basketball and has been on a competitive team. Henry is an avid gym-goer with his dad, and has become very adept at weightlifting, when not crushing it on his Xbox with his buddies. Henry has been preparing for his bar mitzvah under the tutoring and guidance of Morah Sara Levitt.

Henry is the grandson of Ken and Deborah Johnson, of Cheyenne, WY; Jeanie and Paul Vaughan, of Tulsa, OK; and Patty and Bryan Watt, also of Tulsa. Henry has seven aunts and uncles, and dozens of cousins located in Oklahoma, Wyoming, Utah and North Carolina. Also considered family is Henry's early-life nanny, Queen Holt, and her son, Quentin, both of Tulsa.

The community is invited to join the Watt family for services at 4:00 p.m. in person at Congregation B'nai Emonah or in the Synagogue Zoom Room. The meeting ID is, as always, 918-583-7121.

FEATURED EVENTS

■ WHITE SUPREMACY ON NOVEMBER 2

In a remarkable event set to take place on November 2, two distinguished thought leaders, Rachel Laser and Robert P. Jones, will come together to discuss Jones' new book, The Hidden Roots of White Supremacy, and the forms of Christian Nationalism our country has seen both past and present.

Rachel Laser, an accomplished advocate and CEO of Americans United for Separation of Church and State, brings her expertise on the intersection of religion, politics, and civil liberties. She has been a tireless champion of church-state separation, working to safeguard the constitutional rights of all Americans.

Robert P. Jones, a respected scholar and CEO of PRRI (Public Religion Research Institute), is renowned for his research on religion, culture, and politics. His work has provided invaluable insights into the evolving landscape of American religious identity and its profound impact on society.

During this event, Laser and Jones will engage in a thought-provoking conversation that promises to illuminate the challenges and opportunities we face as a society in these transformative times. They will share their unique perspectives and experiences, fostering a deeper understanding of the complex issues that shape our nation's discourse.

This partnership event is made possible through a diverse network of sponsors, including, Magic City Books, All Souls Unitarian Church, Fellowship Congregational Church, and Tulsa Metropolitan Ministries.

Don't miss this unique opportunity to be part of this stimulating conversation. Register at www.tulsagogue.com to join us for an evening of discussion and dialogue about the future of our democracy. Starting time is 7:00 p.m.

MORAH SARA LEVITT—FROM OUR SCHOOLS

FOUNDATIONS

This August, as we welcomed the latest group of youngest students in our school, I was already thinking about when they would become candidates for bar and bat mitzvah. In part because there are so many of them, we'll need to triple the number of tutors in nine years.

It's also that I am constantly thinking about the foundational Jewish experiences for our kids. I'm thinking about how they see their Madrichim (teen assistants) in their class and want to be like them when they enter Eighth Grade. I dream about how they'll sing Shema at night with their families or internalize what it means to be a mensch. I think about how every song, every lesson, every positive interaction at their Synagogue will build on itself and eventually yield incredibly proud, engaged, and knowledgeable young Jewish adults. It is my job, after all!

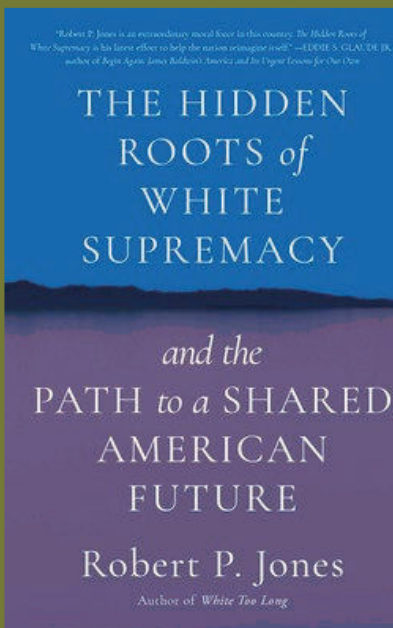

As we continue to work on perfecting those foundational experiences this year, we've embarked on a new project to keep our kids who have recently graduated from high school and are now at college campuses around the country stay connected to their Synagogue. With these students, we've built strong relationships and worked out wonderful experiences with them at the Synagogue. Their foundation is strong, and we want to be sure that we continue to layer on to it, as much as we can from as distance.

Just ahead of Rosh Ha-Shanah, a team of parents came together to assemble Rosh Ha-Shanah boxes for college students. Nestled beautifully in the package were apple and honey-themed treats, a note from our team at the Synagogue, a gift card, and our famous Altamont Bakery chocolate chip cookie. From Vermont to Colorado, Kansas, New York, Texas, and Oklahoma, our Synagogue college students unwrapped a little bit of home this Rosh Ha-Shanah. We hope it brings them joy and that the tether that connects them home to Tulsa and their Jewish community is strong and supported.

We'll send another box at Hannukah and then another at Passover to keep the Synagogue on their minds and the Jewish community in their hearts. If you have a college student in need of a box or want to support this work, please be in touch with me at slevitt@bnaiemunah.com.
